THE TIMES.
A. M. CLEMENT EDITOR.
WEDNESDAY. JAN. 30, 1907.

The grand old man, Hon. John Goode, closes his most interesting work which he has recently given to the public under the title "Recollections of a Life Time" with these impressive words: "While I would not dare invade the province of the minister, I feel constrained to declare that the great business of this life should be to make preparation for that which is to come and no man should be ashamed of the Gospel of Christ. As a rule the men who have made this impress for good upon the times in which they have lived have been christian men. There is no star of hope but the star of Bethlehem." When such men as Lee and Jackson were not ashamed of the Gospel of Christ young men you need'nt imagine that weaklings alone are christians. Christ was the manliest man that ever walked beneath the stars and no follower of his was ever animated with the spirit of the coward. The men and women who fear God fear nothing else.

Montgomery county has fallen into line and will be represented at the Jamestown Exposition. What a colossal blunder those counties are making that have decided not to be there. It is due to themselves and to Virginia, the mother Commonwealth, that they should be there. Ordinary business principles demand such an investment while a sense of State pride and county pride cry aloud for it.

The "short session" may be altogether too short for the debate on the Brownsville episode. Forsaker is playing for the convention vote of the south and at the same time has an eye on the States where the negroes hold the balance of power. And by the way that balance of power up north is an unquestioned blessing to the south. It will soon be white vs black rather than north vs south.

And now that we have studied together again the life-history of the most illustrious character of the century in which he lived, and labored, and loved, let us learn from the immortal Lee how to bear ourselves in hours of defeat, as soldier, if needs be, and as citizen, and this above all things that the manliest man should be the noblest christian.

At most of the smaller depots on all the railroads of our state the races have separate and distinct rooms assigned them and without protest the law of separation is strictly complied with but when we reach Richmond, Charlottesville, Lynchburg and Farmville there is a disgusting mingling still allowed. Let these nuisances be abated and abated quickly.

Norfolk will be under intense strain from now until the Exposition closes. Reaction is sure to follow and some of the people of that lively city will be lamenting that there was any such thing as an Exposition.

Base ballists are already lining up for the opening games, spring prints are to be seen in the stores windows and the March magazines are on sale. There is no reason for the rush, but it goes on just the same.

New York is said to be a fast town but in getting a jury together she is as slow as a steer. If a poor man was on trial would the time of court be so wasted?

Arcanum.

The snow of Sunday afternoon broke up the Rev. A. L. Carson's appointment to preach at the Garnet Chapel near here that night as he had intended doing. Night appointments for the winter are very uncertain of fulfillment, but we hope next 4th Sunday will be more propitious.

The Standard oil, stave making outfit, now located a mile and half south of here is taking everything in the labor line and paying $1.25 to $1.50 a day, and farming is utterly demoralized. There is not a farmer in a radius of several miles who has even one 'hand' at work, and Mr. J. W. Clarke, the efficient busine manager of the plant tells me he expects it will take about two years to cut up all the oak his company has already bought, and have options on; they have secured large tracts from Mr. Jack Hooper, Mrs. Russell (nee Morriss,) Messrs. Moseley, E. J. Steger, C. N. Cox and others.

Mr. Clark has opened a general store and with 50 axes or more in the woods and a dozen or so running the various mill saws things are lively. Another mill cutting hogshead staves out of old field pine is in place and will begin work at once a mile north of here, this is a colored man's outfit.

Curdsville.

On last Saturday January 26th the Curdsville local union of the Dark Tobacco Grower's Protective Association met at Curdsville for the purpose of electing new officers for 1907. Our same old officers were elected with an additional one. Mr. R. B. Joines as Vice President on account of our president, Mr. A. C. Garnett not being able to preside at several recent meetings on account of sickness. Mr. Garnett, however, is very much improved and we hope will be able to take his place as president at our next meeting, which will be the second Saturday in February. It is rumored around that the farmers will have to pay 25 cents per hundred pounds more for prizing this tobacco this year than they did last, and I'm authoritatively informed that this report was put out by warehouse men, or some other enemy of the farmers' association, and there is absolutely no truth in the rumor. The charges for handling the farmer's tobacco at the Farmville prizery is identically the same it was last year. Several of our members were just from Farmville delivering their tobacco to the prizery and reported a quantity of tobacco being delivered to the pool. Very little tobacco was pooled from this place last year. We have about one hundred and twenty-five thousand pounds pledged this year from this local. Brother farmer those of you who were selling tobacco the winter of 1903 and 1904 didn't you wish fo some plan by which you could protect yourself from the ruinous prices that were paid for tobacco on the open market. Don't our threadbare cotton trousers resemble from the waist band to the ankle when the slick tongues auctioneer was knocking your tobacco out at $2, $3 and $5. Didn't some of you go home to your families with empty pockets and not so much as a pound of candy for the little ones. The buyer tried to make out to believe it was an overproduction of tobacco, but it was just simply too small a production of competition, and it was in the buyer's hand to give you just what he saw fit to pay you, regardless of the value of your tobacco, and when that honorable and never tiring Allen, of Tennessee fyled on organization of the Dark Tobacco Growers of Kentucky, Tennessee and Virginia and when the down trodden farmers commenced to rally to his call wh t did the tobacco buyers do but clamed on more over-production? They put the energy of tobacco up just double and can any man give any reason for the Trust advancing the price than to keep enough out of the organization to break down those who were in it. You that are dumping your tobacco, do you think you are treating your fellow farmer with justice who is pooling his? What opinion do you suppose your neighbor has of you? Do you feel proud in walking around public places, and telling what a fine price you got for your tobacco? I should think you should feel, as I imagine a deserter does at a reunion. If you are not able to pool all your tobacco put a small load and if no more you can certainly do that much and show by that you have that much love for your country and fellow farmer and for a cause that has put many a dollar in your pocket.

I hear the [illegible] farmers say they would join the farmer's organization but can't get in with [illegible] and that is probably true, but you quit using, and we mean you find out whether they will stick or not. Then is a time to crack your negro-lord's lash with which he is trying to rule.

WHY A FARMER SHOULD KEEP A BANK ACCOUNT.

Farmers as a rule do not keep books of accounts. Their accounts therefore, on the ledger of a bank will afford them a complete record of all their important transactions, involving the payment or receipt of money. A cancelled check, when returned by the bank, at the end of the month, constitutes the safest receipt one can have for showing the payment of money. Paying a laborer, a store account, or any other bills, with a check drawn on a bank, is safer than using money; because the person receiving the check must endorse it and the check should be preserved as a receipt.

Money deposited in a bank is not so easily or so often "Coaxed away" as when carried a day in ones pocket. Try the experiment for one year of keeping a bank account and see if it does not pay you.

A large number of the most reliable farmers, in this section, have accounts with us. We are very desirous of having the accounts of farmers on our books an we will be glad to furnish, at any time whatever information we can in regard to the subject of banking.

The persons who open accounts with us are furnish check books free of cost.

HOW MUCH FERTILIZER TO APPLY
The question, "How much fertilizer should be used per acre?" cannot be answered definitely, but only in a general way. It is sometimes put in this form: "How many pounds of fertilizer per acre may be applied per acre?" Neither one of the questions in the amended form is exactly and accurately answered. The soil, its character, condition, preparation, etc., may be well known, or somewhat known, but we know not what the seasons may be. Experiments at the Georgia Experiment Station, Department of Agriculture, in the Virginia-Carolina Fertilizer Almanac.
We know that some crops will bear larger amounts of fertilizers with reasonable assurance of profitable returns than will be expected of other soils. A crop that occupies the soil from the fall following the time of planting until the next harvest fertilizing than will a crop that is planted in the spring and ripens for harvest in midsummer. The first may be illustrated by oats, wheat, or other small grains, or grass, especially when sown in the fall of the year. Such a crop occupies the soil from the fall of the year, or early spring, during which period the raines are usually abundant, ripening for harvest in late spring, or very early summer, before the burning summer heat and possible drouths in June and July. Oats and wheat therefore are crops that will bear heavy fertilizing. Corn is rather an uncertain crop on the ordinary dry uplands of the South. It is not a short period in which to develop its flowers—tassels and silks—covering a few days. If very dry weather will prevail when this critical period is passed, the crops may prove a good or less failure. There can be no second crop in the second period of blooming. It is different in the case of cotton, which commences to bloom and mature fruit in June or even earlier and continues to bloom and mature fruit until killed by a severe frost in November. It has a number of "chances."
Cotton is therefore another ideal crop for liberal fertilizing. A small amount of fertilizers applied per acre will no doubt yield a larger percentage profit than a heavier application per acre. To illustrate: An application of 50 pounds of fertilizer per acre may cause an increased yield of cotton of 25 pounds or the value of $6 to $8, or a profit of 200 to 300 per cent. on its cost. This frequently had such results. But it does not follow that 100 pounds per acre will produce twice the increase in pounds, or that three times as much would cause three times as great an increase in the yield. In other words, the rule of increase does not hold good, but must be in proportion to the increase in cost. Thus, if 50 pounds per acre, at a dollar per hundred pounds, would yield an increase in the crop of $6, 100 pounds worth would therefore bring an increase of $12.
But careful observation has shown that an application of $5 to $6 worth of fertilizers per acre, or from 200 to 300 pounds per acre, is quite common. Many farmers in Georgia have secured satisfactory returns from an application of as much as 800 pounds per acre.
Thinking this question a perfectly new one on upland in Liberty wood condition, would say 200 pounds per acre would be safe. For poor land would think the application of 250 to 300 pounds per acre on old uplands.
